Congressional Leadership.

The National Era devotes nearly four and a half columns to a survey of the present House of Representatives. We wish the article could be read by every Republican in the Union. It shhows that there are three parties in the House, neither of which have a majority—the Republican, Administration and Know Nothing -and though there was a clear anti Nebraska majority, yet a part of this majority was made up of Know Nothings who had made all the difficulty. Banks was the only man who could have been elected, and, after he was chosen, the union between the northern Know Noths ings and Republicans ended. Cullom, a southern Knew Nothing, was chosen Clerk, by the votes of a few inconsistent Republicans, and then some Republicans voted for Glossbrenner, Democrat, for Sergeant-at-Arms, to divest the organization of a party character, and to check Know Nothingism. Then a Door Keeper and Post Master were chosen from the Know Nothings on condition of their supporting Follett, Republican, for Printer, but the Know Nothings refused to ratify their part of the bargain, and so an Administration Printer was elected. People, it says, bave wondered why nothing was done day after day, for Kansas, for six weeks after the organization of the House; but the secret of all this delay was Know Nothingism, which would permit nothing to be done which would not enure to the benefit of the Order. Attempts have been made to make the anti-Nebraska sentiment tributary to Know Nothingism, and to form a union-in which the Know Nothing creed shall be a constituent part, which would be ruin to the anti-Nebraska

Nevertheless, such perils have been joiled about the young State of Kansas that it is an question. The Democrats opposed the move- act of courage to settle there, if a man goes with the true spirit of American Institutions.

To go there determined to transplant to its soil that tree of liberty which under Go, has in older States borne and shook down from its boughs all the fruits of an unparalleled presperity, requires heroic courage. It is a pleasure and honor to us to be in any way connected with such an enterprise, by furnishing to the emigrant material or moral aid.

I have personally felt a double interest in our company, because it springs from New Haven, my father's birth-place and home of my

You will be surrounded by men who have already committed the vicksend forth companies of men with their famyou therfore, as I promised, the arms required for twenty five men.

I have not the least fear that a hundred men bred under New England influences will be too eager or too warlike. You have been taug it to create wealth and not to rob it; to reply upon intelligence and rectitude for defence. And you will not be in any danger of erring on the side of violence.

But you are sent for the defense of g eat rights. You have no liberty to betray their by cowardice. There are times when self-def use is a religious duty. If that duty was ever imperative it is now, and in Kansas I do not say from which you cannot shrink, without lea ing your honor, your manhood, your Christia: fi-delity, behind you. But this invincible courage will be a shield to you. You will not need to use arms when it is known that you have them, and are determined to employ them in extremities. It is the very essence of that spirit which Slavery breed to be arrogant toward the weak, and cowardly before the strong. If you are willing to use your lives, you will save them. The Tollec, we are informed, is improving very much.

The mines on the Evergreen Bluff, are all looking well, and will help very materially to swell the amount of mineral raised this year. We are informed by Mr. Buzzo the Agent, that the Ridge produced during the month of February 7 tons of copper. The total expenses for the same time, did not exceed $2,000.

The Adventure raised during the same month 20 tons. The Aztee, one of the mines situated on the Evergreen Bluff, has produced since the close of navigation, with an average force of only six miners, over fifty four tons of copper. The Mass mine, contemplate increasing their force from four miners to twelve, within a few We fearn that it is the intention of the proprietors to commence the sinking of a new

At the Norwick, several large masses are exposed, and notwithstanding the small force, they have been obliged to work, on account of their limited amount of supplies, the mine still promises a haudsome product.

Who takes all the Papers ?- We have been furnished by D. Pitman, Esq., the Post Master of this village, with an item in regard to the printed matter received and distributed at the Ontonagon Post Office, by which we learn that there are received as regular papers from abroad one hundred and ninety-three different newspapers, many of which are dailies and tri-weekies, and in addition, sixty-three of the different magazines. This does not include the occasional papers sent to friends, &c., which must be quite large. But a small portion of this readable matter is taken out of the town, as there are three other offices in the County, and the mines receive, as a general thing, their mail matter through them

If we add to the above the circulation of the Miner" in the village alone, which exceeds one hundred copies, we have a total of over three hundred papers. We consider this speaks well for the intelligence of a community containing from ten to twelve hundred inhabitants.

Mr. Geyer addressed the Senate on Kansas affairs, saying his position in the Senate as sole representative of the State of Missouri would not permit him to decline participation in the debate; he engaged in it as a work of necessity rather than inclination; the circumstances under which debate originated seemed to indicate a purpose to make political capital out of the Kansas disturbances, with a view of controlling the coming National and State elec tions. In such controversary he did not wish to engage, but it became his duty to defend his constituents against grave and serious charges brought against them. He proceeded to cons sider the constitutional aspect of the Blavery question. Without concluding Mr. Geyer
